Outdoor Adventures.....

Are Better With a Travel Companion...

Get outside and experience nature - the Faltovn portable camp stove will turn every outdoor adventure into a lasting experience. This small, well designed stove can transform your tent into your home. Designed and manufactured by Harrie Leenders in the Netherlands as a tribute to the renowned Scandinavian outdoorsman and wilderness explorer Lars Fält.

This unique stove weighs 22 pounds and the stove box measures 10" h x 7½" w x 18" d, which makes it the perfect travel partner. It is easy to carry, easy to assemble, and even easier to use. This compact stove produces a hot fire by using pre-heated air from inside the stove. It gets even hotter when it circulates against the reflection shield on the roof of the firebox, and thus increases the efficiency of the stove and reduces fuel consumption. The door of the Faltovn works as the air control, and by leaving the door ajar, it gives the fire extra air. In addition, the internal reflection shield can be adjusted and slid open to produce even more air flow.

The Faltovn camp stove is designed with an extra thick top plate made for cooking and heating. The side extension tray is ideal for drying socks or keeping food warm once it is heated. The kit also includes three sections of pipe 16¾" long x 3" diameter that fit inside the stove for easy transport. It also comes with a spare metal plate to use in an emergency if the glass breaks while out in the wilderness. A black weather-proof vinyl carrying bag or canvas with leather detail bag is also available upon request. The durable Faltovn camp stove offers warmth, ambiance, and the ability to cook a meal in the great outdoors whenever nature knocks on your door.
