A Good Time for a Cleaning

A fireplace or wood-burning stove that is well cared for will last longer and provide many years of service in home heating. If you burn your stove often, it is important to have the chimney cleaned at least once a year. Here are some recommendations for how to get the job accomplished.

1. Call a trained professional in your area to do the job.
2. Look up your local chimney sweeps online.
3. Ask a friend or call Wittus for a recommendation.
4. If you are handy at home, you can do the job yourself.

Stove News

“One Stop Shopping with Style “

“In 2026, wood stoves are transitioning from simple heating appliances into central, curated focal points, with a strong emphasis on biophilic design, cozy aesthetics, and EcoDesign efficiency. Key trends include incorporating dark, moody-colored chimneys (charcoal, forest green, terracotta), natural stone or textured tiles, and integrating wood stoves into living room layouts designed for relaxation and social gathering.”
