A Healthy Earth

Earth day falls on April 22nd every year. But it is not just one day that we can embrace mother earth. Being concious of our surroundings and making sure we keep it healthy is a number one priority. Doing small things like picking up trash from a local roadside, limiting the use of water when doing house hold chores and shutting down lights when no one is around can help in big ways. Do your part not just for one day, but every day!

One Stop Shopping with Style

"When is the best time to shop for a wood stove? Try to shop in the Spring or Summer if possible. That is the slowest season and you can take your time. Getting your hands on stove and flue parts early gives you a chance to double-check that you have everything you need before you need it."
